THE MOST PROFITABLE CABBAGE TO RAISE!

$250.00 WORTH OF CABBAGES

PRODUCED BY

One Pound of Van Namen's Holland Dutch Excelsior White Cabbage Seed.

In order to supply the long felt want of the American Cabbage Grower, for a late ripening solid, hard, pure white Cabbage, a good keeper and excellent shipper, I introduced three years ago:

Van Namen's Holland Dutch Excelsior White Cabbage Seed, producing Late, Large, Round Solid Heads of Snowy Whiteness, weighing from 12-18 lbs. and up to 25 lbs.

It has stood the trial test in this country during three years by prominent growers and seedsmen and proves to be an excellent keeper and Free from Rot.

Price, postage prepaid, 25 cts. per ounce;
75c. per quarter pound, $2.50 per pound.

SPECIAL PRICES FOR LARGE QUANTITIES.

Van Namen's Excelsior White Cabbage, Cauliflower and other Seeds, being expressly grown under contract for a number of years for my American trade, I am now prepared to book orders for Fall delivery of 1899.

I SUBMIT A FEW TESTIMONIALS:

A word from an American market-gardener, who has been supplied by me with seeds of the above Cabbage, Cauliflower and other vegetables. Mr. Jacob Wride, Florist and Market-gardener, of Auburn, N. Y., writes under date of January 26, 1897: "In regard to the Cabbage, they were the best I ever raised, and I have been raising Cabbage for 20 years. The average weight was from 12 to 18 pounds, and they often weighed 25 pounds. They are good keepers and do not rot, as other kinds often do. The quality was of the best, and the color could not be better. I set 8,000 to try them, and will raise no other this year. (The variety above alluded to is Van Namen's Excelsior Holland Dutch White Cabbage, late, large, round, solid heads.) The Radish seed was also of the best, running true to name and quality. (Radish alluded to, Scarlet White Tip, French Breakfast, Round Spanish, Winter, Non Plus Ultra.) The Cauliflower which you sent me were very fine and the largest ever grown in this section; they were of the best quality, often being 18 inches a crown, and of solid stump, which most other kinds have not. (Variety of Cauliflower alluded to, Early Erfurt Dwarf.) The Cabbage after heading did not crack, but stayed solid and firm until fall. I have some left which are in as good condition as when they were pulled.

Yours truly,

JACOB WRIDE.

Extract from catalogue of Messrs. A. F. & F. Bray, Pawtucket, R. I. Mr. Anthony Perry says of this Cabbage: "The best I ever had." Grows quick, sure to head, large size, and of very fine flavor.

From Messrs. Thomas J. Grey & Co., Boston, Mass.: "We have placed considerable of Van Namen's Excelsior Dutch Cabbage seed in the hands of the market-gardeners around Boston, and they all report that it has given entire satisfaction. I will say personally that our trade has increased very much, and feel confident that we can dispose of a large amount this coming season. The people now demand it. I feel confident that it will fill a long desired want in this market.

THOMAS J. GREY & Co.

From Mr. C. L. Allen, the well-known Seed Grower, of Long Island, N. Y. "The sample of Holland Cabbage sent for trial in my grounds the past season, proved it a fine Strain of this popular Cabbage. As a shipping variety it is very valuable. The solidity of its round heads, whether large or small, and its snowy whiteness, makes it particularly attractive as a market variety."

Yours truly,

C. L. ALLEN, Floral Park.

From Mr. H. N. Blair, Skaneateles, N. Y. "We have raised Van Namen's Holland Dutch Cabbage Seed, this year for the first time with very good results. We sowed one pound of your seed on two and one-half acres and the crop will bring about $250.00. We set our plants two to three feet apart, we think we obtain better results than would be obtained by setting the plants closer together. We fertilized the land with 500 pounds per acre. One load of Van Namen's Excelsior Holland Dutch White Cabbage, 500 heads, weighed 4,500 pounds, an average of nine pounds per head, which is the best average we have ever seen, when all the plants were cut through the patch. I would say in conclusion that Van Namen's Holland Dutch White Cabbage Seed grows the largest, hardest, and most matured heads of any Seed I have yet seen; some of our heads weighing 21 pounds after being trimmed for market. Wishing you success to the Holland Dutch Cabbage.

Yours truly,

H. N. BLAIR.
